Dr. Andrew Bass - General James Rhodes

General James Rhodes (born 1765; died 1810) was the son of James and Elisabeth Rhodes. General James Rhodes stands out in Wayne County History as a merchant, land owner and the husband of Anna Bass (born 1776; died 1817), the daughter of Dr. Andrew Bass and Alice Rhodes, daughter of William and Sarah Rhodes. Dr. Bass was a leader in the American Revolution and one of the founders of the town of Waynesborough. He willed to his daughter, Anna, twenty-two slaves and more than four thousand acres of land. His will was probated April 1791 Wayne County Court. Henry Rhodes of Dobbs County, will probated January 25, 1774, is thought to be the grandfather of General Rhodes.

The Rhodes Family Bible shows that General Rhodes and Ann Bass were married April 10, 1793 and that they had three sons and three daughters to wit: Joseph Andrew, James, William Thomas, Sallie Ann, Anna Maria and Rhodes Clarissa. James was the only son who lived to marry and that was to two daughters of Daniel Kornegay.

After the death of General Rhodes in 1810, his widow married Cullen Blackman. Daughter Sallie Ann married Stephen Smith; Anna Maria married (1) General Edward Ward (2) Buckner Lanier Hill; and Rhodes Clarissa married Richard Blackledge Hatch

Richard Bass

Richard Bass, son of Andrew Bass of Craven and Dobbs County, was born about 1725 in that part of Craven County, North Carolina that later became Dobbs and then Wayne County. He soon accumulated quite a bit of property and land in Wayne County. In the 1769 Tax List for Dobbs County, he owned several slaves and in the 1790 census of Wayne County, he owned 28 slaves. He inherited land from his father, received several grants from the Governor, and bought several tracts of land in Wayne County.

Richard was one of the trustees to help establish the town of Waynesboro in Wayne County on the land of his brother, Dr. Andrew Bass, in 1787. He was active in the Revolutionary War and fought for the freedom of his country.

He is thought to have married Sarah McKinnie of Wayne County.

On November 17, 1791, "For love and consideration for his beloved grandchildren, Uriah and Thomas A. Bass, orphans of Andrew Bass, Jr., deceased, "gave two tracts of land in Wayne County, on east side Falling Creek and Brooks Swamp and the Upper side of Long Marsh, four plantations, and the plantation whereon Andrew Bass, Jr. formerly lived.

Richard is known to have had several children, viz; Edward, Andrew Jr., Uriah, Elizabeth, and Sarah Bass, and Thomas Bass. There may be others.
